

Ivana Ljuština

Bachelor's degree in Ethnology and Cultural Anthropology from University in Ljubljana, Slovenia. Currently attending Woman studies on Faculty of political science, Belgrade, Serbia.

In her thesis, by using the method of long term ethnographic work she was collecting testimonies, describing paths, strategies and living conditions of out-of-regional migrants, crossing Serbia on there way to Eu. In her work she is especially critically approaching the concept of asylum, safe third country and transit and consequences of externalization of the European migration politics focusing on Serbia.

She is activist of NoBorder initiative and involved in different activities, collecting information's and doing advocacy for migrants in the Slovenia and Croatia.

While doing internship in CESI she will examine the influence of European migration politics on the BiH and its asylum system.